

So, are you gonna enforce this shelter in place order or is it just an empty gesture to make it look like you are doing something? I live in Fort Bragg, it looks the same today as it always has. Packed with tourists, everywhere is still pretty much open, normal level of traffic on the streets, hell even Starbucks is still open with no plans of shutting down even though I'm pretty sure a coffee shop isn't really an essential business during a national health emergency.
