

Only in California could we have a billion dollars of Covid money going to a Chinese company sanctioned by Congress.

The Mendocino County's Covid page has stopped reporting the number of cases tested and positive cases found. Perhaps the county is embarrassed it only tested about 400 as of Friday.

If the county can only manage 400 tests in four weeks, we are woefully unprepared to unlock the economy. At that point we will need large scale testing.

Dr. Bricks stated at the White House Covid news conference Monday that there are enough testing machines sitting unused in labs throughout the country to double the number of results overnight if all of them were used.

California is still doing one of the worst in the nation jobs on testing. This from the tech capital of the world. Three weeks ago we had tested 300,000. Today 3 million.

Perhaps someone can yell at the Governor to crack the whip at the lab directors throughout the state who have testing machines that are not engaged in the war effort.

Perhaps the press can drill down on which labs have the idle machines in the state.
