

I will make this short: Why is there no effort to shut down or slow tourists from coming to the Coast? Many people in the community are very upset with this lack of action. I live in Mendocino and there are hundreds, maybe thousands of campers and people in hotels, motels, and vacation rentals staying here. The support staff to clean their rooms and houses, wait on them in restaurants, bus their tables (yes, that means removing their soiled tableware), cook their food, check out their grocery items is at risk of contracting covid and taking it home. There are license plates from all over the U.S. here right now and more arriving every day. How is this a good idea when we, ourselves are being told to stay home?

I have written to everyone and so far, no replies and no action.

Sincerely,

Judy Steele
