

I am horrified that you have chosen to do this. These are amazing animals that live here. My kids have only seen lions in the zoo, but we actually have wild lions right here! They should be protected and adored, not slaughtered because we are encroaching on their habitat. What is wrong with the human race, that you think we should destroy everything that does not immediately or financially benefit us. I just got done teaching my kids about the amazing cats that actually live here and now I have to explain that there are people, who kill them because they are taking their land and altering it for selfish reasons, just like they did to native Americans.
