

To the Mendocino County BOS:

As a resident of Mendocino County for over 40 years, I oppose the expansion of permitting for larger land tracts for cannabis.

Large cannabis farms will ultimately benefit big-money individuals and entities at the expense of the general populace.

A better solution would be to streamline the permitting process so that small family farms can use the "Mendocino" appellation without competition from Big Ag. If cannabis with the Mendocino brand is limited, it will be more valuable. And the local legacy family farmers will spend their money locally, benefiting all residents.

Corry Hanna
Laytonville