

Re: rezoning range lands to agriculture, items 20.243 & 6.36

If the idea that opposition to the County's permitting large-scale tourist-accessible cannabis operations in previously range land areas is a "disinformation campaign", I would ask the Supervisors, individually and together, to for once consider the effects on local residents of giving free rein to large commercial operations (historically timber, wine, and now cannabis) without even the fig leaf of environmental impact reports.

Allowing such commercial operations on the scale proposed, while surely profitable for the proprietors, will only negatively impact local resident by increasing off-highway road use, water consumption, fire danger, and reducing our quality of life.

Thank you for your consideration of these points.
